

Ricoh Paper Packaging

When Ricoh decided to offer a line of paper as companion to their suite of document output devices, they called upon Page2 — a lead developer of Ricoh’s Marketing Communications components for over 12 years — to design its packaging. The objective was a bold, strongly branded presentation that wouldn’t suffer from the flexographic printing methods (think of it as a huge rubber stamp) used to manufacture this type of packaging.